Drawing from The Institutional Analysis (formerly The Safety and Accountability Audit), this training will teach the practical methods, skills and strategies to coordinate and implement an assessment of your community's response to violence against women. The Institutional Analysis, developed by Praxis International, is an inter-agency team process that identifies ways to incorporate safety and accountability into the daily routines and practices of workers who intervene in cases involving violence against women. Grounded in the experiences of victims, this process seeks to 1) identify how problematic interventions and negative systemic outcomes arise and 2) develop and implement recommendations for long-lasting, systemic change.

Institute participants will learn how to:

- Determine the scope of your assessment given local resources
- Utilize the basic elements of an assessment in your OVW-funded project and adjust for the politics of your community
- Analyze different types of text that impact outcomes for victims (reports, forms, policies, recommendations, transcripts, etc.)
- Conduct effective, engaging and informative interviews with key interveners
- Get the most out of an observation of practitioners' work (such as 911 dispatchers, law enforcement officers, etc.)
- Conduct focus groups to glean insider knowledge and insights
- Facilitate interagency team meetings and data analysis sessions
- Draw conclusions from the information collected and translates it into new policies, procedures, training strategies, resource allocations, supervisory and oversight practices, linkages, and job functions that improve outcomes for victims

This event is supported by Grant # 2011-TA-AX-K050 awarded by the Office on Violence Against Women, U.S. Department of Justice. Points of view expressed are those of the presenters and do not necessarily represent the official position or policies of the U. S. Department of Justice.
